Education is the best weapon against AIDS

By A. L. LANDERS
Staff writer

As the AIDS virus sweeps the nation without a cure or vaccine in sight, it would seem the most effective defense in combating the deadly disease is education, administrators said.

In drafting an Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome policy last year, Eastern took the first step toward a comprehensive program to deal with the ignorance and hysteria the disease had inspired.

Although the university as yet remains untouched by the virus, Eastern's second step in dealing with the seemingly inevitable problem appears to be an AIDS educational program for students and faculty.

Glenn Williams, vice president of student affairs, was in charge of drafting Eastern's AIDS policy. He said the key in AIDS education is to "just use as many channels as possible and we can try to get the information out.

"Of course, there's no way we can force people to pick up information on AIDS," he added.

In an effort to reach as many students as possible, much of Eastern's educational program this year has been concentrated in the residence halls.

Bud Sanders, director of the Counseling Center, has a program available to the resident halls featuring a video-taped AIDS program, followed by a question and answer segment, that aired on NBC and is hosted by Tom Brokaw.

He said an open forum on AIDS is scheduled March 9 in the University Union. The forum will give Eastern students a chance to gather AIDS information and ask questions.

"We're trying to get across the message that AIDS isn't a gay/drug disease," Sanders said. "It's moving into the general population.

"College students need to be aware because this is a time of sexual experimentation," Sanders said.

One problem in impressing students with the serious possibility of contracting AIDS is the fact there are no known cases in Coles County, Sanders said. "College students say there's no AIDS in Coles County so I don't have to practice safe sex," he added.

"It would be almost a miracle if we didn't have carriers (of AIDS) on Eastern's campus," Sanders said. "If we have people on campus with the (See EDUCATION, page 6A)

Eastern official dislikes Reagan-favored aid program

By MICHELLE MUELLER
Staff writer

While President Reagan is proposing budget cuts totaling 46 percent in federal financial aid, one new program is receiving a boost of funding.

This is the controversial Income Contingent Loan Program. Education Secretary William Bennett is quoted in The Chronicle of Higher Education as calling it "the single greatest advance in student aid in over a decade."

Reagan's proposed budget calls for $600 million to fund the ICL program, while proposing that Perkins loans be cut from $210 million to $26 million, according to the American Council on Education.

"It's an untested program," said John Flynn, Eastern's director of financial aids. "The administration seems to be putting a lot of book into an untested program," he said.

According to the Chronicle, colleges would distribute the money to eligible low- and middle-income students with financial need. Borrowing limits for a student's entire academic career, including graduate school, would be set at $50,000.

After graduation, payments are set according to the student's income. Individuals would be required to send a copy of their income-tax returns to their college. The college would then adjust payments.

Colleges would receive money from the government to help cover the costs involved in the paper work, however, Flynn said, "That would not even begin to touch the cost."

Flynn said Eastern would not be able to afford the costs of running this program. "With the current staffing it would be impossible," he said.

Flynn said he did not know how many schools would be able to implement such a program, but said he knew many schools had decided not to participate in the experimental pilot program. "I have to assume it's because of the costs," Flynn said.

A major difference between current loan programs and the ICL is that with Perkins loans and guaranteed loans, the government pays the interest while the student is still in school.

Under the ICL, students can add the interest onto the principal borrowed, but the total amount will in turn be accumulating interest, according to the Chronicle.

Flynn said it's expensive for the government to pay for all the interest. The interest subsidy on guaranteed student loans alone, for example, comes to approximately $3.5 billion, Flynn said. "That's a lot of money," he added.

Blood drive misses goal by 97

By CRAIG EDWARDS
Activities editor

It was 4:14 p.m. Thursday and the tension was growing in the Union Ballroom. Would the American Red Cross Blood Drive meet the 1,650-pint goal set by local organizers?

Mark Bomball, faculty advisor for the blood drive, said the ballroom was packed when the doors were closed at 4:15 p.m. At that time, he said the total amount of pints collected was 1,500 and he doubted that there were enough donors left to reach the goal.

As the ballroom gradually emptied, the total began to rise, leaving the final blood count at 1,553, just 97 pints short of the goal.

Bomball said even though the goal set by Eastern's organizers wasn't met, the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross had set a goal of 1,550 pints, which was exceeded by three pints.

Spring Blood Drive

Goal: 1,650 Pints

"We did meet St. Louis' goal. We just got carried away in setting an even higher goal," Bomball said, adding that the local organizers always try to shoot for something higher.

Last semester, the blood drive collected 1,474 pints, surpassing the students' 1,450 goal.

"I was really hopeful when the room was full at 4:15," Bomball said, adding that with 30 beds the nurses can take blood from 30 people at the same time while others are registering and having their vital signs monitored.

"It started out slow," Bomball said of the drive which ran Monday through Thursday. Although only 274 pints were collected Monday, the next three days proved to be more profitable, gaining at least 400 pints each day.

"I've never seen or heard of three 400-pint days in a row," Bomball said, adding that he was happy many students did show up to give blood.

"The kids here at Eastern did a great job," he said, adding that over 6,000 people will benefit from the blood that was collected during the four-day drive.

State/Nation/WorldReagan criticized for arms swap

WASHINGTON—President Reagan "did not seem to be aware" of the full consequences of his arms-to-Iran policy or of the unprofessional way it was implemented by the National Security Council staff, the Tower commission said today. Its report faulted both the president and his closest aides.

The president's handpicked investigators bluntly challenged Reagan's oft-stated explanation for his policy, saying that the Iran initiative became almost from the outset "a series of arms-for-hostages deals."

As such, "they could not help but create an incentive for further hostage taking," threatened to upset the military balance of the Iran-Iraq war and "rewarded a regime that clearly supported terrorism and hostage taking."

An hour after receiving the report, the president announced he would make a nationally televised speech next week.

Tower report says Reagan failed to set security council policies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Tower Commission had harsh words Thursday for all key officials involved in the Iran-Contra affair, and the panel's report did not spare the individual who stood above them all, President Reagan.

A damning section, entitled "Failure of Responsibility," opened by focusing on the man who had the ultimate responsibility for the actions of the National Security Council.

"You can say this president holds himself a little too aloof from the implementation of policy," the commission's chairman, former Republican Sen. John Tower of Texas, told a news conference.

His description seemed to sum up much of what the commission felt was wrong with the council's operation. Repeatedly, the report returned to that theme.

"The NSC system will not work unless the president makes it work," it said.

"By his actions, by his leadership, the president therefore determines the quality of its performance," the report added.

When it came to recommending reforms in the system, the commission made it clear that the president, the nation's chief executive, is the key. His responsibility does not end with setting policy. He also must demand from his aides an accounting of how that policy is implemented.

"His task is to provide them leadership and direction," said the report. It was clear that leadership and direction in the matter of the Iran-Contra affair was left to others.

Act protects student's rights

(Editor's note: This is the last article in a five-part series concerning Eastern's Judicial Review Board.)

By JEFF MCCOMBS
Staff writer

The Family Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 serves to protect the student and grant him rights never given before, but as far as the media is concerned, it serves as their worst nightmare.

Because of this act, members of the press are not permitted to attend hearings which the University Judicial Board holds, nor is the press allowed access to the records of what takes place during these proceedings.

The act, which is also known as the Buckley Amendment, was designed to give students and their parents access to students records while attending the university.

"The university cannot release to the outside world academic information without the students written permission or a court subpoena," said Keith Kohanzo, Eastern's judicial hearings officer. "Law schools, med schools, FBI and the Military Officer Commission will request the student to release his records. The student has to execute the release on his own doings."

That is what the act was intended for, but it also falls under guidelines which ban the press from finding out what happens during the judicial hearings.

Kohanzo said he feels that the rest of the student body has a right to know what happens to students in trouble on campus, but says they are bound to the federal law.

"The federal law provides safeguards against student records," Kohanzo said. "In virtually all cases, a student's best interest is served by getting on with his life. A student's best interest is also served if their problems remain confidential. Even if we felt otherwise, the federal law prevents us from releasing personal, identifiable information without their permission."

Should a student violate the law and also have to go before the judicial hearing board, the press is allowed to inspect the county court proceedings. However, if and when the same student is to appear before the judicial hearing board, the press is not allowed to inspect the records which concern the school penalties.

Kohanzo also feels that it would benefit the student if the criminal justice system were closed.

"As far as a student is concerned, it might be better if the criminal justice system were confidential. However, the interest of society in having open trials outweighs the desire of citizens to keep criminal matters quiet."

The Buckley Amendment also allows administrators to let parents know of the student's status with the university if they are under 21 and dependant. When the act was first passed, Kohanzo said, parents would call up the university, and the university would not tell the parents where their child was.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Thursday's edition of The Daily Eastern News that 612 students said they were undecided about the addition of new recreational facilities in a Student Senate survey. The total undecided number was 125. The total number of students completing the survey was 612.

Also in Thursday's edition, the group participating in the lip sync contest for multiple sclerosis in a photo were from the Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity.

The News regrets the errors.

Meet demand by supplying new instructors

The economics department has a supply and demand problem.

The demand for its classes exceeds the supply of instructors to teach those classes. While we find the enthusiasm for these classes encouraging we do not, however, find the problems resulting from this shortage of instructors encouraging.

Editorial

A bill passed recently by the Student Senate suggests that the administration increase either the size of each class or the numbers of instructors in the department.

We agree with the bill—in part.

Increasing class size will probably reduce the chance of being shut out from a class, but it won't help the instructors or students. Crowded classes are not very conducive to learning because instructors may not be able to teach as effectively as they would with a regular size class.

The problem is stemming from the increase of students in the economics and business departments. Business majors are required to take Macro, Micro and International Economics to get into the College of Business. The same classes are required of economics majors.

We agree with economic instructors, the only solution to the problem is to increase the number of instructors.

As the supply and demand theory suggests, when there is an increase in demand you try to meet with an increase in supply of the product on demand. You do not meet the increase by displacing the demand and not increasing the supply.

An increase in instructors would obviously help more students get the economics classes they need and help the instructors work closely with a smaller number of students. Students can only benefit from an instructor increase.

It is now up to the administration to decide how to solve the problem before demand becomes too high a curve for supply to intersect.

Landers' column spurs commentary

Editor:

I am writing in response to Ms. Landers' review of "Platoon" in The Daily Eastern News. as a Vietnam veteran I wish to make several comments regarding Ms. Landers' comments as well as the movie. First I feel Ms. Landers in her assessment of the movie comes away with the intended goal of the movie producers. That is, war is brutal, and death is ugly and not romantic. I think that the importance of this movie was its shock value, that in war people die; they do not die a glorious death as in Greek mythology or Rambo movies—they die in ugly, unpleasant ways.

In terms of the accuracy of the film, by in large, I feel it adequately portrayed the attitudes of the American soldier. The basic motivation of the American soldier was not patriotism, but survival; and do what one must to survive. Further, it adequately presented horrors of death and combat.

Regarding inaccuracy, the film to some extent perpetuated the myth of the American soldier as a "baby killer." Let me begin by saying there were what can be considered atrocities committed by both sides. The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were not followers of the principles of Gandhi.

In order to understand how a baby-faced 18-year-old could brutally kill a cripple one has to understand the psychological process of displacement, as well as experience the fear, frustration, stress and futility of fighting a hidden enemy. It was not crystal clear who was friend, who was foe.

Imagine yourself walking all day in a hot, humid environment; being bitten by mosquitoes and not knowing if each step would be your last. Add to that the fact that you have not taken a shower in a week nor had a hot meal or a good night's sleep in days. Each day one or two individuals in your unit dies or loses a leg. You look for the enemy, and he is gone.

Therefore, one displaces this anger, fear, hostility and stress on others, who may or may not be responsible for the deaths/injuries to members of your unit. But, as portrayed in the movie, the atrocities committed against "apparently" innocent civilians were committed by only a few Americans; it was not a wide-spread behavior as the media would like us to believe.

I, too, was shocked by the killing of innocent civilians in the village. Those killings were senseless and based on my experience would not have occurred if the platoon commander utilized effective leadership and control.

Second, in terms of inaccuracies, Americans did not abandon Americans in the field. There was a scene in the movie where this occurred. In reality, it was not uncommon to have American units suffer more casualties than necessary in order to evacuate all the dead, wounded and the living from the area. The general code being, "We all came in together, we all leave together."

I hope the movie "Platoon" has two effects. First, I took my 11-year-old daughter to see the film because I do not want her generation to repeat the mistakes of mine. And that is, never again commit Americans to die in conflict that we do not intend to win. Second, I hope this movie will show others the brutality of war, and the ignorance of war.

Ms. Landers concludes by saying she is hopeful that this will be the last movie about war. I wish to conclude by saying I hope that Vietnam was the last war.

Beauties compete

The 20th annual Miss Charleston/Delta Chi Pageant, a preliminary competition for the Miss Illinois Pageant, will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Union Grand Ballroom.

"Delta Chi is the first social fraternity in the country to receive a Miss America preliminary franchise," said Chris Caldwell, executive producer and director of this year's pageant.

Caldwell said winners from Eastern's Delta Chi pageant have been participating in the Miss Illinois competition since 1973.

"We try to run our pageant as close to a Miss America presentation as possible," Caldwell said, adding that there is a swimsuit competition, a talent portion and a presentation of each contestant's on-stage personality.

He also said the panel of judges are sent to Charleston by Miss Illinois officials.

Composer honored

The 100th birthday of Brazilian composer Heitor Villa-Lobos will be celebrated with a concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in Dvorak Concert Hall.

The centennial program will consist of 13 compositions by Villa-Lobos: nine piano pieces, two vocal solos and two instrumental works.

George Sander, music instructor, will present four works written by Villa-Lobos while he was director of a national music education program in Brazil.

Other faculty members in Eastern's music department who will take part in the program include: Timothy Lane, flute; Richard Barta, clarinet; Dan Goble, saxophone; and David Appleby, piano.

AAUP holds lecture

Computers will be the topic of an American Association of University Professors lecture at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Booth Library Lecture Hall.

Anthony Schaeffer, an Eastern mathematics instructor, will make a presentation titled, "Where are computers taking us?," said Frank McCormick, a member of the AAUP lecture committee.

Schaeffer has worked as a systems programmer and has designed computer hardware, said Kandy Baumgardner, president of the Eastern chapter of AAUP.

The AAUP lecture series is in its 35th year at Eastern.

virus but no symptoms, they're the ones who are going to infect others.

"We have to change peoples' lifestyles," Sanders warned. "When you sleep with someone, you sleep with all of the people they've slept with for the last seven years."

Sanders said the stumbling block in the effectiveness of his presentation is the crowd it draws. "I'm concerned that most of the people I'm talking to aren't the ones who will contract AIDS. The more sexually active don't come."

Student Housing Director Lou Hencken said education is important, but it is also necessary to keep the problem in perspective.

"I want to do as much as we can so every student knows what it is and what they can do about AIDS. There are a lot of misconceptions," Hencken said.

However, he added, "We want to do as much as we can to alert people, but you get to the point where education turns to hysteria."

Hencken said, in addition to Sanders' program, the residence halls are looking at various video tapes speaking on the topic of AIDS. "The trouble is a lot of things in presentations are outdated by the time they get on the market."

The halls also periodically post flyers and pamphlets updating AIDS information, such as how it is caught and what research is being done, Sanders said.

The program in the residence halls is only one way the Counseling Center is trying to educate students. "We have pamphlets and brochures available on AIDS and safe sex. The pamphlet on safe sex is explicit so we give it to those in high risk groups. The others are available in the waiting room (of the counseling center)," Sanders said.

Sanders expressed concern that education alone is not enough. "It's a state of conscience problem. I don't see how we can raise it until we lose a student or faculty member (to AIDS)."

"It's unfortunate, but inevitable," he added.

Festival jazzes up campus

by DONELLE PARDEE
associate activities editor

More than 750 musicians will be on Eastern's campus Saturday for the 8th annual Jazz Festival. The festival is sponsored by Eastern's music department and jazz studies program. The musicians are from 39 high school and junior high school bands. Jazz bands in five classes will compete from 8-11:30 a.m. in the Union Grand Ballroom, Union Station and Dvorak Concert Hall. The top three jazz bands in each class will be chosen by a panel comprised of top-rated professional musicians and university music instructors from throughout the country. After the morning competition, there will be a improvisation clinic at noon with guest artist Bobby Shew. The clinic will be followed by a concert by Shew and the Eastern Jazz Ensemble. Both will be given in Dvorak Concert Hall. Shew is known as a first-call trumpet player in Los Angeles. He has appeared with Tommy Dorsey, Woody Herman, Buddy Rich, Robert Goulet, Paul Anka, Della Reese and Steve Allen.

WEIU-TV down for fifth day

A faulty transmitter has grounded programming of Eastern's television station, WEIU channel 51, for a fifth day following the discovery of the problem early Monday morning. Station Manager Ken Beno said the programming difficulties are because of a "power supply problem." Service personnel from Acrodyne, the company that manufactures the faulty piece, are traveling to Eastern from Philadelphia and should arrive in Charleston Friday, Beno said. "The transmitter was built out there," Beno said. "They are working on it (the problem) out there to see what the problem is." When the workmen arrive, Beno said they will work through the day and may even work into the evening until the problem is fixed. Several viewers have complained since Monday that the news has not been aired, Beno said. Beno said programming will resume by Monday if repairs go as planned.

Lady tracksters primed for GCAC title meet at N. Iowa

By JEFF D'ONOFRIO
Staff writer

Eastern's women's track team ends its indoor season this weekend when it travels to Cedar Falls, Iowa for the Gateway Conference meet.

The meet is the biggest of the year for the Panthers as they finally get the chance to go head-to-head with the other nine teams in the conference.

Craft said that his team is "running well" and looking forward to running against the other conference schools.

"We have a good shot at a third, fourth or fifth place finish," Craft said. "Anything better would be gravy."

This weekend's meet will be the last chance for a member of Eastern's team to qualify for the upcoming indoor nationals.

Craft said that senior shot putter Valeta Strickland has the best chance of anyone to go to nationals. She has to come up with a throw of 50-8 to qualify. Her best throw this year came last week when she threw 47-4.

Strickland is confident that she will repeat as conference champion and is hoping that senior teammate Debra Zubik can come away with second place.

"If I don't make the indoor nationals, I'll sure be going for it outdoors," Strickland said.

Eastern's two-mile relay team comes into the meet as the favorite in the two-mile relay with a season best time of 9:04.26. They will have to cut that time by almost 13 seconds in order to qualify for nationals.

Seniors Janine Jarris, Lauren Lynch and Tracy Olawumi will be joined by junior Marcia Rivard on the relay squad.

Wrestlers lose fourth straight

By MIKE NELSON
Staff Writer

Eastern's wrestlers dropped their fourth dual meet in a row at the hands of Northern Illinois Thursday night, 18-15. The loss moved the Panthers' record to 4-8 on the season.

Northern handed Eastern an early 3-0 lead as Craig Sterr (118-pound) won on a forfeit. The Huskies narrowed the gap to 6-3 when Tino Gonzalez decisioned Eastern's Pat Flynn 6-4.

Dean Souder won the 134-pound weight class for the Panthers with a 12-10 victory over Mike Gonio. The win made the team score 9-3. Northern came back to take the next five weight classes and a 28-9 lead in team scoring.

The Panthers finished the scoring with wins in the 190-pound and heavyweight classes. At 190, Henry Teverbaugh edged out Northern's John Popp 5-4. Demetrius Harper improved his season record to 27-3 with a 13-7 decision over Eric Wenckowski.

Eastern will attempt to get back on the winning track Friday when they host Southwest Missouri State in Lantz Gym. The meet will be the Panthers' last home meet of the season.

Everybody's heads were down; everybody was quiet; nobody said anything," Neal said. "We just want to send them (UNI) home that way this year. But we're not counting anyone out—especially UNI."

"You could tell last year we were on the road," Maton said. "I'm just waiting to see how many people will show up (this weekend)."

The Panthers return with three past indoor champs: last year's AMCU-8 Indoor Athlete of the Year Jim Maton, who won the mile and 1,000-yard runs last year and the 880-yard run in '85; Ian Isaacs, who won the 440-yard dash last year; and Dan Matas, who won the shot put last year.

The Panthers also come into this weekend placing at least one athlete in the top five conference performances of the year in every one of the 16 events.

Jarris, Lynch spice field

Panther striders put rankings on the line

By JOHN PLETZ
Staff writer

Janine Jarris and Lauren Lynch will put their rankings on the line this weekend at the women's Gateway Conference track championships at Northern Iowa.

For Jarris and Lynch, senior long and middle distance performers, this weekend's meet will be their last indoor competition. However, the two Panther leaders are within striking distance of conference titles.

Jarris is ranked third in the 1,000-yard run (2:35.34) and fourth in the mile run (4:58.05). Lynch, meanwhile, is the No. 1 contender for the 880-yard run title.

The two-mile relay team of Jarris, Lynch, Traci Oluwami and Marcia Rivard is also tops in the conference following a victory at the Illini Classic last weekend. The two-mile squad's 9:04.26 mark is a full three seconds in front of Illinois State.

The showdown between the Redbirds and Eastern will be a rematch of the Feb. 7 meet at Lantz Fieldhouse where the Panthers set the conference standard.

Although the Panthers are a clear leader on paper, Lynch and Jarris both felt that Illinois State will be right on the Panthers' heels this weekend.

"It'll be close, but I think it will be between us and ISU," Jarris said.

Lynch explained that Eastern's relay team has been consistent with Jarris, Oluwami and Lynch, but there has been a different face in the third slot virtually every week.

"There are three people consistently running and one juggled, and that's where I think ISU has the advantage," Lynch said.

"(The two-mile relay) ran well for the competition (at the Illini Classic), but I expected more from the meet," Lynch said. "I just expected us to run a faster time, but we didn't need it."

Lynch felt that the inactivity and a lack of tough competition could make the season's climax, well, anticlimactic.

After an easy home meet against Indiana State, Principia College and the Terre Haute Track Club in early February, the Panthers were off until the disappointing Illini Classic last weekend.

Inactivity and less than world-class competition have left the two Panthers with an eerie sensation of doubt running through their minds at a time when there should be no question of confidence.

"I think I would have rather raced for two weeks," Lynch said. "I thought the Illini meet would be bigger and I felt that I've had two easy weeks."

Jarris, who finished fifth in the 1,000-yard run despite a personal-best time of 2:35.34, felt challenged in Champaign, but sympathized with Lynch:

"For me in the 1,000 it helped," Jarris said. "In the 1,000 I was really pushed—my time was good. (But,) sometimes when you don't run your race, you kind of get scared and wonder if you can still run it as quickly as before."

Lady cagers run away from Shockers, 68-49

By MIKE FITZGERALD
Staff writer

Eastern's women's basketball team took the first step in gaining a Gateway Conference Tournament berth by hammering Wichita State 68-49 Thursday in Lantz Gym.

The Panther victory, coupled with Indiana State's 85-70 win over Bradley, ties Eastern with Illinois State for third place with a 10-7 record.

If Bradley should lose to Illinois State on Friday, the Panthers will get a spot in the tournament.

The Panthers broke from the gate early, opening up a 15-3 lead with 10:06 left in the first half.

Wichita State came roaring back, outscoring Eastern 23-12 over the last 10 minutes of the half, to pull within one point at 27-26 at the half.

Eastern coach Bobbie Hilke believes that Eastern's letdown may have had to do with a lack of concentration on the team's part.

"We seemed to be more concerned with the referees than the game at that point and that hurt what we did. We also made some shakey passes and Wichita State jumped on them," Hilke said.

The Panthers shook off the Shockers in the second half though.

Both teams traded baskets back and forth in the early minutes of the second half, but at the 14:37 mark, with Eastern leading 35-34, the Panthers exploded.

Eastern ran off 15 unanswered points to take a commanding 49-34 lead enroute to the victory.

Guard Pat Hamilton led the Panthers during the run with seven points. She finished the night with a game-high 23 points, scoring 17 in the second half. She also had five steals.

"Her steals got the monkey off our back and gave us some breathing space," Hilke said.

The Panthers also received a good game from center Laura Mull, who pulled down a game-high 13 rebounds and blocked four shots while adding six points.

"Her rebounding and blocked shots gave us a lift," Hilke said. "She also played some great defense for us as well."

Eastern out-rebounded the Shockers, who came in as the league's leading rebounding team, 45-42.

Forward Lisa Tyler also continued her tear by scoring 17 points and hauling down 10 rebounds.

It was Tyler's three-point play during the Panther run though, that Hilke believes "tipped the scales for us".

Eastern shot 41 percent from the field for the game while Wichita State shot a miserable 33 percent from the field for the game.

The Panthers finish the regular season on Saturday with a 5:15 p.m. contest in Lantz Gym against Southwest Missouri.

Tracksters gain intensity, prepare for indoor title hunt

By BARRY BOTTINO
Staff writer

The stage is set.

Nothing more simple can be said about the AMCU-8 indoor track and field championships which begin at 4:30 p.m. Friday and continue at noon Saturday in Lantz Fieldhouse.

The dominance of Northern Iowa's purple Panthers is well documented. They have been indoor conference champs for the past three years and head coach Chris Bucknam has walked away with the Coach of the Year trophy the last two years.

But this year there are some changes.

Eastern's Panthers are favored to win the meet, which would almost automatically lock up Coach of the Year honors for Eastern head coach Neil Moore and assistant Tom Akers.

"The coaches have done a great job with the talent we have," sophomore long and triple jumper Derrick Lee said.

Eastern also has the advantage of being the hosts, which has been UNI's role for the past two years.

"I think we're going to win it because I believe in my team, and I'd like the students to share that with us," Moore said.

"The crowd could play a very positive role in (Eastern winning) the championship and we're counting on them," said Moore.

"The fans would be missing quite a bit if they didn't stop by," Akers said. "We're probably more ready for this meet than we've been for any other meet this season."

"Everybody wants it," said senior Phil Maton, who said that throughout this week's workouts (See TRACKSTERS, page 11A)

Cagers eye weekend league sweep

By JOHN STROUD
Associate sports editor

Eastern's men's basketball team hopes this week's wins over Northern Iowa and Colorado State will springboard the Panthers to victory in their final two AMCU-8 contests of the regular season.

The Panthers host Valparaiso Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Lantz Gym and then travel to Western Illinois Monday to close out the season before heading into next weekend's post-season conference tournament.

Eastern lost to Valpo 66-61 on the road three weeks ago when the Crusaders were still in the thick of the conference race, and the Panthers were in the midst of an eight-game losing streak.

The Panthers beat Western 76-68 two weeks ago to snap the losing streak.

Since then, Valpo has faltered to 12-13 overall and 4-8 in the league, while Western enters the weekend at 11-14 and 1-11 to bring up the rear in the conference.

Monday's 65-55 Panther win over UNI was the second conference win for Eastern moving them to 2-10 in the league, while the overall mark went to 8-17 with Wednesday's win over Colorado State.

Panther coach Rick Samuels knows nothing is easy when the March madness of collegiate basketball rolls around. But the Panthers are confident they can win their last two regular season games and gain momentum for the tournament.

"There is a very specific way we will have to play Valparaiso," Samuels said. "Basically, they live and die by the perimeter shot. Two kids, (Scott) Anselm and (Mike) Jones are excellent perimeter shooters."

The Crusaders will be without their leading scorer, junior Harry Bell (16.9 point average), who was suspended for the remainder of the season for "failing to attend class."

But Samuels doesn't think that fact will necessarily weaken the Crusaders' attack.

"Sometimes that kind of thing can bring a team together. I'm sure they'll have someone rise to the occasion," Samuels said. "Their basic philosophy is

Wis.-GB hangs tough

While the Bears of Southwest Missouri wrapped up the regular season AMCU-8 championship with an 80-46 thrashing of Valparaiso Monday, the race for second place rides on key contests this weekend.

Currently, Cleveland State sits in the second spot with an 8-4 conference mark, but Wisconsin Green Bay, also 8-4, has its nose in the door.

Green Bay's Phoenix figure into two key contests, one Thursday at fourth-place Illinois-Chicago (7-4) and again on the road Saturday at Cleveland State.

Illinois-Chicago also has to face Southwest Missouri on the road Saturday, while Cleveland State hosts Northern Iowa Monday.

The race is particularly important in determining who Eastern will face to open next weekend's conference tournament at Southwest Missouri. The Panthers could finish anywhere from sixth to eighth based on this weekend's results.

Tournament pairings will be determined as follows: the eighth place team meets No. 1 SMSU, while seventh plays second, sixth plays third and fifth plays fourth.

—John Stroud

going to be the same."

Crusader coach Tom Smith was unavailable for comment Thursday.

Eastern's tough defense, which was a key factor to staying in the last three games, will be forced to come out and shut off Valpo's perimeter attack.

"They spread you out defensively, and you've got to come out and cover them," Samuels said. "We've got to be very alert defensively."

Another aspect of Eastern's game plan as of late, the four corners offense, will be challenged by Valpo's match-up zone defense.

"They'll play almost solely in a match-up zone," Samuels predicted. "I don't know if we're going to be able to force them out of a zone unless we get well up on them early."

Flutist mixes indescribable sounds with classical work

By DANE BUCZKOWSKI
Staff writer

So how do I describe something that is indescribable?

Last week a flutist blessed our campus with some things that seemed to have never happened. I say this because what I heard wasn't really flute playing, but it was some mysterious calling by phantasmagorical beings. He might really have been a type of ghost.

Robert Dick was the flute master that played last week. He is a flute instructor and composer of a type of avant-garde music that is appealing to the average listener.

My past subjects were mainly on classical music-involving conventional composers and what most people would call legit music. (One point—many composers, during the time they were writing, were considered very radical. The ones that first come to mind are the French impressionists. Debussy and Ravel were easily considered radical rebels in their day.)

Dick did not play what I would call conventional music. He played music that might not even be considered music. But who defines music anyway?

As a scientist of new ideas and methods of flute playing, Dick conveyed outrageousness to his audience of about 70 people. That's about the best way to describe it. He held a low pedal tone (I didn't think a flute could ever play that low). Then over the pedal tone he sailed melodies that brought us to a Turkish harem. This tune was supposed to sound like the music played in a seraglio with the gongs, flutes and dancers.

Another piece that stands out in my experience is called "News." The title held true to the content. "News" says all the things in the piece were newsworthy. I agree. The development of new concepts for a several-thousand-year-old instrument certainly should be in the news.

Sure, I would have loved to see all my friends and readers of this column at this recital, but what the heck? I can't force you to go—just present it in a way that will arouse enough curiosity to go freely.

REVIEW

Deep Purple's latest shows basic sound

By DAVE DALCASON
Staff writer

Deep Purple's latest release, The House of Blue Light, is one of the best albums by the group thus far, proving these veteran hard-rockers can still hold their own against the best of today's younger groups while retaining the basic formula for their classic sound.

Ritchie Blackmore, the influential guitarist with a sound as easily recognizable as Eddie Van Halen's, made a tough decision when he disbanded his successful group Rainbow in 1983 to rejoin Deep Purple. However, Blackmore's decision to reunite with the rest of the once-troubled group has paid off handsomely. A tight comeback effort, Perfect Strangers, emerged in 1984, followed by an arena-packing tour which earned widespread respect for the group from a new breed of fans. The chemistry of Deep Purple was once again intact.

The "new" Deep Purple, along with Blackmore, includes: Ian Gillan, vocals and harmonica; Roger Glover, bass; Jon Lord, keyboards and synthesizers and Ian Paice, drums. This version of Deep Purple is the most popular, originally lasting from 1970-73, producing such hits as "Highway Star," "Woman from Tokyo" and the classic "Smoke on the Water."

"Bad Attitude," the first song on the new disc, is a heavy, hard-rocking tune carried by Paice's abominable bass drum "thumps."

"The Unwritten Law" and "Call of the Wild," the next two songs, are almost polar opposites. The former resembles vintage Purple, featuring a strange beat by Paice and Hammond chords laid on thick by Lord, while the latter is a modern-sounding, commercial piece with Lord taking the main lead.

Songs four and five, "Mad Dog" and "Black & White," resemble Purple works of the past.

"Hard Lovin' Woman," the first song on side two, presumably the counterpart to the group's "Hard Lovin' Man," grooves along smoothly.

The album's most progressive piece, "The Spanish Archer," comes next. Possibly the strongest work on the disc, this is a virtual showcase for Blackmore.

"Strangeways" is an appropriate name for the third song on side two, the group's attempt at something different. Gillan moans and Blackmore screams, while a strange, synthesized lead helps give this song an identity of its own.

The last two songs, "Mitzi Dupree" and "Dead or Alive," are quite different from each other. The first is a piano-laden blues song with obnoxious howls from Gillan, while the last features the intense delivery of a heavy-metal tune.

Blackmore, Lord and Glover play with a newfound aggression in this unforgettable good choice for a last song.

The House of Blue Light far surpasses the group's last album, Perfect Strangers, the only real weak spot being the album's slightly inferior sound quality. Otherwise, Deep Purple's combination of a '70s backbone with an '80s delivery proves to be a true winner.

Deep Purple is currently on its U.S. tour, and should be well worth seeing. Reproducing the new album's tightness and raw energy shouldn't be a problem for a group that recorded one of the best live albums of all time, Made in Japan, 14 years ago. And like a fine wine, Deep Purple continues to improve with age, so its live show should be better than ever.

Business Majors Invited To Career-Planning Presentation

By Kurt Standen
LT U.S. Navy Supply Corps

The career path followed by most business students is to go directly from campus to corporation. A career-planning audio-visual presentation of the Navy's Supply Corps questions whether that path is the best one for ambitious students.

According to this presentation, global experience gained in the Supply Corps has been a major factor in the exceptional success of top business and financial executives, such as:

- James D. Robinson III, Chairman American Express
- Edward Carlson, former Chairman/CEO of UAL Inc.
- William Marriott, Chairman/CEO of Marriott Corp.
- James Ketelson, CEO Tenneco Inc.
- Robert I. Stewart, President Liberty National Life Ins. Co.
- John J. Pruis, Vice President corporate relations Ball Corp.

The success of these and many other prominent executives may be explained in part by experience not taught in classrooms or learned in most entry-level positions. This experience includes: learning to work with people, development of a global perspective, management techniques, and postgraduate education in business comparable to an MBA.

Supply Corps officers don't command ships or gun batteries.

As the elite business professionals of the Navy, Supply Corps officers manage one of the largest, most complex business operations on the globe.

Two Career Possibilities

Business students accepted for commissioning in the Supply Corps have two options.

1. The Supply Corps as a career.
2. Return to a civilian position after a tour of two to four years. Under this option, students would be trained for positions which otherwise would not be offered to them.

Business students may find out if they qualify to join the elite business professionals in the Supply Corps by attending a career-planning presentation entitled "The United States Navy Supply Corps. The Business Professionals of the Navy."

This presentation will be conducted by LT Kurt Standen one time only this semester at 7:00 P.M. Tuesday, March 10, in the Sullivan Room, University Union.

'New wave' Husker Du to rock U of I Thursday

By TINA POSZICH
Staff writer

An American band with a Swedish name is expected to come on like a nuclear explosion Thursday at Foellinger Auditorium in Urbana.

Husker Du, a Minneapolis-based trio, will be performing at 8 p.m. following the opening band, Christmas, in the 1,700-seat auditorium.

Leslie Nuss, senior manager of Star Course who is promoting the concert, said that selling out tickets "would be great", but in reality it "would like to sell 1,000 tickets."

"Husker Du is pretty popular with people who listen to that music," Nuss said. She described the band as having a "post punk, new wave" sound. The sound is comparable to that of The Replacements and the Violent Femmes.

Band members Bob Mould, Greg Norton and Grant Hart are currently on their first major U.S. tour promoting their latest double album, "Warehouse: Song and Stories."

Nuss said that this is "their first release on a major label, Warner Brothers." Their previous label was SST, she said.

Nuss said Husker Du means "Do you remember?" The band, named after a children's card game, has been together since 1979. It has had quite a following prior to its latest release. Some critics, however, believe the band has "toned it down a little," Nuss said, "before they had a harder edge."

Nuss said tickets are $9.50. Concertgoers have a choice of buying them at the door or calling the student-run Star Course at (217) 333-0457 for tickets.

TALE-END

(uh?)

To my dismay, all of this had very little to do with the shock that awaited me. The shock of everything shutting down.

You'd think they'd give you some warning like a little beeping sound or the lights gently fading out. But no! The stereo stops. The lights go out leaving you blind. And worse yet, the whole bed jolts as the top slowing ascends upward.

I say "slowly" because when it was over I wanted out. Not later, I wanted out then! So when it was high enough to allow me to make my exit I managed to squeeze through the five inch gap. (It's amazing how wide five inches is when you're that determined.)

After that, I dressed, gave back the jolly little man's tape and went on my way. Fun? Sure! Let's see you do it!

Search for that sub-tropic tan winds up in coffin beds

By GARRICK SPEARS
Staff writer

I have to work over spring break!
I knew when I took a full-time position that I'd be making some sacrifices, but this is going just a little too far for me.

I don't mind not being able to go to some exotic place for week. I don't mind not being able to sleep 'til noon everyday. I don't mind not having my days to do nothing. But I do mind not getting a tan!

I hate it when everyone comes back from break. You know the ones I mean, too. They're the ones who wear the pastel-colored clothes to show off their deep, dark sub-tropic tans. (Clothes, I might add, that shouldn't be worn 'til—what is it? Memorial Day!).

And as if that's not bad enough, it's getting worse.
Nowadays all those people want a head-start on their tans! It's so they don't burn when they lie on the beach all day. . . supposedly.

I guess I can't cry too loud because last year I fell prey to the cancer coffins. I know, I know, here I am complaining about the sun gods/goddesses and I did it myself. Maybe so, but I think the trauma I experienced should gain me sympathy enough.

I remember walking into the converted candy store(?). All along the walls were the partitioned cubicles with lavender light beams seeping through the cracks. My ears were filled with a sort of buzzing sound of which I knew not the origin.

Before I could take this all in, a jovial little man who looked as though he had been bronzed like my first pair of baby shoes came bouncing over to explain that he had the best of the best in beds. Of course they weren't just beds, they were super beds! And his bulbs. . . the best of bulbs too!

After I got the sales pitch (like I was going to leave once I saw the place and go somewhere else after I drove to Mattoon just for this place!) he finally left me alone to my coffin.

It was kind of weird too because I didn't know if I should, like, take off all my clothes. So I didn't 'cause you know someone could peek under the partition.

Anyway, here I am with the coins (the kind that can only be inserted one and only one way into the box) in one hand and cassette tape in the other with the goggles that look like a doll's bikini top lying beside me.

That when I took the plunge. . . I inserted the first coin.

My God! The lights came on! The stereo blared! And I was going to go blind because I didn't have the goggles on!

Well, what to do? Remembering the jovial little man saying the coins had to be put in one right after the other, I opted for that until I heard how loud the stereo actually was. So with my eyes closed (can't take any chances with those ultra-bright lights which, by the way, are stamped RADIATION BULBS!) I fumbled with the volume and grabbed my goggles, molding them to my face.

By now my nerves were shot. And to get the second coin in the slot the right way was beyond me! But I managed and moved on to the hardest part of the whole process: lowering the top of my cancer bed.

I don't know how you're supposed to be able to see through those goggles. I sure couldn't because they made it look like the top was already on top of me. So like the fool I am I stuck out my arm to feel how close it was actually getting. (I would love to have a video of it all!)

With the top lowered as far as physically possible I began to enjoy my skin therapy. Well, OK, so the top was still a foot above my face and I was shaking like a leaf with my eyes squinted close (of course!) I was having fun now!

Over the next ten minutes I managed to lower the top until it bumped my nose and un-squint my eyes for fear of lines. I even was able to listen to the music.

I was even comfortable enough to adjust the music.

Picture this. Here's this death-bed with fluorescent blue light oozing out the sides and me with my arm pinched between the top and bottom, searching wildly for the volume. (I bet you'd like a video of it all too,

CONGRESSIONAL RESOLUTION

Designating the month of March 1987 as
"Women's History Month"

Whereas American women of every race, class and ethnic background helped found the Nation in countless recorded and unrecorded ways as servants, slaves, nurses, nuns, homemakers, industrial workers, teachers, reformers, soldiers and pioneers;

Whereas American women have played and continue to play a critical economic, cultural and social role in every sphere of our Nation's life by constituting a significant portion of the labor force working in and outside of the home;

Whereas American women have played a unique role throughout our history by providing the majority of the Nation's volunteer labor force and have been particularly important in the establishment of early charitable, philanthropic and cultural institutions in the country;

Whereas American women of every race, class and ethnic background served as early leaders in the forefront of every major progressive social change movement, not only to secure their own right of suffrage and equal opportunity, but also in the abolitionist movement, the emancipation movement, the industrial labor union movement and the modern civil rights movement; and

Whereas despite these contributions, the role of American women in history has been consistently overlooked and undervalued in the body of American history:

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the month of March, 1987, is designated as "Women's History Month", and the President is requested to issue a proclamation calling upon the people of the United States to observe such month with appropriate ceremonies and activities.
